On the Winslow extradition case. Cameron has telegraphed to his friends here that he very highly appreciates the honor conferred upon him by the President and Senate that it was entirely unexpected; that he is now, too much indisposes to leave, but hopes to be here in a few days, and in the mean while wil decide whether he will accept the office. THE STRUGGLE OVER PACIFIC MAIL.

NEW YORK, May 23rd. A meeting of the Board of Directors of the Pacific Mail Company was called for yesterday afternoon, but again there was no quorum. Judge Speer, of the Superior Court, has granted and order requiring Sidney Dillon, Jay Gould and William Osborn to show cause why a mandamus should not be issued compelling them to attend a meeting of the Directors and vote for the election of officers. The complaint is by Rufus Hatob, who declares that repondents China Traders' Lusurance Company's Sharespersistently and studiously absent themselves from meetings. It is remodered that Gould is about to resign and take with him his friends in the Board This sotion is said to be the result of a conviction forced upon him by an examination of the transfer books, showing that a majority of votes is likely to be cast by the Hatch party at the

A prominent gentleman connected with the Panama Railroad Company states that, under the new Directory of the Pacific Mail, provided his party secures control, the interests of the .two corporations will no longer conflict; and further, that if an effort be made by the Union Pacific to cat down rates for the purpose of competition, the gauntlet thus thrown down will be promptly accepted and another contest will be inaugurated.

NEW YORY, May 28rd, 2 p.m. At a meeting of Pacific Mail Directors, today, a quorum being present, it was resolved to close the books on Thursday, the 25th instant, for elation of officers for the ensuing year. Three Inspectors were appointed.

The unexpected unminity of this action makes a very material addition: to the strength of the gentleman from Maine. Tai Loong to local tradet. We find that eighteen States and three Territories give Blaine on the first or second ballot 245 votes. There really seems to be nothing very extravagent in the claim made by Blaine's friends that he will start with a strongth of nearly three hundred votes. Those who believs that Blaine bardly fulfills the requisites of an ideal Presidential candidate bad better frankly recognize his undoubted strangth. The Times' telegrams show also that Bristow his likely to secure the New Hampshire delegates, to be elected to-day.

PENNSYLVANIA AND THE PRESIDENCY. A World Washington special saye: -The friends of Cameron deny any bargain and sale; and ascert that it is very doubtful if Cameron accepts. Advisos have been received berefrom some of the delegates from Pennsylvania to the Cincinnati Convention, stating that they cannot be transferred from their pledges for Hartranft, to vote for Conkling or any one else. His party, numbering ninety-siz, left atdaylight next morning, and brought full particulars. They buried John Schenck, of Yankton, who bad been shot eight times. He is from Buffalo Gap, on the north side of the Platte, between Red Cloud and Sydney. On the 17th the Indiana attacked a minere cabin et midnight, at Rosebud, between Custer and Deadwood, and surprised and killed all the occupants, literally backing them to pieces. There are about 400 people in Custer and 200 houses. Nothing can be done on account of the Indiana.

We have confirmation of the rumour respecting the deposition of the Tao tai. THE COLDEN SIDE. There is many a rest on the road of life. If we only would stop to take it; And many a tone from the better land, If the quefulous boart would wake it. To the sunny soul that is full of hope, And whose beautiful trust no er faileth The gress is green and the flowers are bright. flion h the wintry storm prevaileth.

Beter to hope, though the clouds bang low, And to keep the eyer still lifted : . For the sweet blue sky will soon peen through, When the ominous clouds are ufted. There was never a night without a day, Nor an evening without a morning; And the darkest hour the proverb goes,

Is the hour before the dawning. Tout is many a gem in the path of life, Which we pass in our Idle pleasure, That is richer far than the jeweled grown Or the miser's hoarded treasure: may be the love of a little child, Or a mother's prayer to Heaven, Or only a beggar's grateful thanks For a cup of water given.

Better to weave in the web of life A bright and golden filling, And to do God's will with a ready beart And hands that are swift and willing. Than to sand the deliente silver threads Of our curious lives asunder : And then Heaven blame for the tangled ends. And sit to grieve and wonder,

THE EXECUTION OF NEY. In reference to a leaderette which appeared in the Freeman regarding the alleged nonexecution of Marshal Ney, we have received from Mr. John Lentaigne the subjoined most interesting narrative. In his note to us Mr.

Lontaigne says :--" My cousin and dear friend, Victor Hervien Duclos, formerly an officer in the French army, and subsequently up the period of his death, in 1831, a physician in Dublin has of the actual appearance of Marabal Nev's body after execution, which he himself saw. Possibly this manuscript, which is in Hervien Duclos' own handwriting, and which has never yet been published, might now be deemed worthy of insertion in the Freeman you draw attention in your leading article." The following is a narrative, which we are sure will be read with deep interest, and which, we believe, disposes of American "The tribunal appointed to try Marsha Ney having found him guilty of the charges laid against him, sentence of death was im. mediately passed, and notwithstanding the lateness of the hour-past eleven at nightthe event spread through the town with astonishing rapidity. His execution was flued for the following morning at cleven o'clock, and the Plaine de Grenelle, so often inbrued with blood, was stated to have been selected for the last scene of his eventful life. Impelled by curiosity and manyother feelings. I accordingly took my way to the 'Plaine de Grenelle' this morning, expecting an immense military array with the glare of bayonets, the flash of sabres, and the frown of artillery. oppose an augry multitude, scarcely to be controlled even by the terrible array of threatening power. At half-past ten o'clock in the morning I was in front of the 'Palais' "du Luxembourg," whose the trial had been held, and which had served as the prison of the Marshal. There was there no excitement usual consisted of the Garde Nationale

It struck me that probably the King had yielded to the entreaties of Madame Ney, who was known to have been at the Tuileries since the early part of the morning, and that he had extended his Royal pardon to the illusmultitude which the expectation of the them out of their sepulchres and to restors execution of such a man was calcu- them to the light of day, is the business of lated to draw together, I inquired of a the travelling connoissenrs, of whom there letter cerrier who was passing to show me are always a few continually on the move in the read à la Plaine de Gronelle. A genuine collector, a man of the looked on him as a martyr to their cause. My apparent sympathy obtained his confidence, and, looking on me with more kindness, 'Ah! mon brave, he exclaimed, vous vous known a man to take a trip from one end of liez voir la fin d'un grand houme, mais vous the kingdom to another for the chance of etes trop tard-il a peri! He then expluined to me that a great crowd having assembled Stradivarius which had got smashed in a in the Plaine de Grenelle from an early hour in the morning, Government had deemed it prudent to change the place of execution, if, indeed, they had not, from the first wilfully led the public astray, and they had substituted the Place de l'Observatoire accordingly. One of the gates of the garden of the Luxembourg opens into the Place de l'Observatoire, and not five minutes previously my informant bad seen the marshal enter a hackney corch, attended by a priest, and escorted by a few gendarmes, and drive rapidly across the garden. When you addressed me, be said. Je tresaillais encore des coups de fusile.' Surely you must have heard them as you were coming up; and he added, 'Je les entends encore.' To reach the Place de l'Observatoire, which is famine, and fire. A hundred thus perished on the Boulevard de Mont Parnasse, I had annually. At Bow, thirteen persons were only to run round the garden. I was there in a few minutes. When I arrived all was ten in the same way at Lewes, including a still as the grave; one solitary gendarino rode mother and her son; and ten also at Colup and down on the road; two others, who chester, six in the morning and four in the had dismounted, stood beside their horses; and four or five men were slanding in silance round a stone which was covered with fluid which he gave the following account, avoiding any expression of his own opinions, or any commentaries on the facts. The gengarmes overheard the conversation, and as what he stated was strictly correct. His statement was as follows :- The backney coach which conveyed the marshall with an attending priest across the garden of the Luxembourg was guarded by a small detnohment of gendarmerie a cheval; it was precoded and followed by a few National Guards. and twenty-four veterans brought up the rear. The moment the carriage had passed the gate it stopped, and the marshal sprang out with alacrity. After speaking a few words with the priest, he walked with a firm, deligrate step the spot pointed out by the officer in command, and turning quickly round, so as to face the veterans, now drawn upin a double line opposite him, he exclaimed in an impassioned and hasty manner-Jai combattu pour la France pendant pres des 30 ans, et je mours la victime du jugement le plus inique. Vive la France Vive la patrie!! With the last words he waved one-hand, whilst he applied the other to his breast. The officer gave fatal word, and the first line of veterans fired. Their sim was unerring and merciful. Ney was covered that the was propitiating God, and securing with wounds, and giving one bound forward health and domestic blessing, by offering he fell on the stone which lay before us covered with his blood, and expired without

The number and situation of his wounds most attracted attention, and I looked vain on the faces which surrounded me to discover any inward suppressed emotion.
